

Putting theory into practice isn't always easy. To help, the College of General Studies at University of Phoenix recently identified practices that faculty can implement to cultivate empathy in their classrooms:

